MARSHAL CARTER

---

Hi! My name is Marshal Carter and I am a graduate of Campbell University College of Pharmacy & Health Sciences. I am an energetic and patient-focused licensed pharmacist who has practiced in New York, North Carolina, and New Jersey. Having earned the United States Public Health Service Award, I am proud to have been recognized for my Public Health passion. More recently, I have been assisting with recovery efforts in Western NC after Hurricane Helene.

I believe that patients are best served by a team of healthcare professionals. I began a consulting service upon graduation where I have worked with chiropractors, nutritionists, nurses, and doctors to consult with them on how to best serve their patients. My role was to review lab values and make recommendations that highlight the positive impact a pharmacist can have in the collaborative healthcare model. The consulting service afforded me the distinct opportunity to learn from other practitioners as well as educate them on how pharmacists are vital links in the health care continuum. I have also had the honor to coauthor continuing education utilized by NC Chiropractors.

Having worked at an Independent Pharmacy in Wake Forest during and after pharmacy school, I understand the challenges faced by independent pharmacies when serving their communities. From 2015-2017, I worked in New York as the Pharmacy Manager for Target who was then acquired by CVS Health. I served as the district immunization leader and traveled to pharmacies in three states to enhance their public health immunization programs. Upon moving back to North Carolina in 2017, I have served 30+ Target channel pharmacies, from Asheville to Raleigh, as a floater. Wanting to advance my education further, I took the BPS exam and became credentialed as a Board Certified Geriatric Pharmacist in early 2019. I was promoted to manager at CVS in Charlotte, and appointed the district's immunization ambassador for the 2019-20 flu season. I have since been promoted to District Leader serving over 60 retail locations in 3 years.

The experiences I have had since graduation have all contributed to my understanding of the profession of pharmacy as well as the board's role in protecting the public. I am constantly humbled by the outpouring of support I have received from practitioners all across the state, and the communities in which I serve. If elected, I promise to keep the public's safety my primary objective and continue to be a servant leader.
